Esthetic Implant Placement

Anterior implants are among the most technically challenging procedures in implant dentistry. Periodontists are ideally suited to treat these areas as we are accustomed to the delicate surgery that is required in this area. These implants also draw on many disciplines that we are well versed including soft and hard tissue grafting. Meticulous planning can optimize the esthetic result. The case below illustrates a typical case treated in our office. Although a high esthetic demand case, the end result was well accepted by the patient and the referring Doctor. When there is concern about the esthetic challenges, we are ideally suited to help implement the plan.
